Sounds of Cody: "What is that in the western sky,

Ring goes the bell and the inside sounds of Cody begin — the noisy tone of 4,000 students bustling from class to class; the penetrating pitch of the teacher lecturing his class; the vivacious notes of seniors enjoying every last minute; the spirited chants of the students attending pep assemblies; and the busy hum of the clubs planning future activities.

Ring goes the bell and the outside sounds of Cody begin — the shrill note of the cheerleaders boosting our team to victory; the sad hymn of the students following a losing game; the vibrant beat of the band marching on procession; the musical keys of the Comets playing in the festivals; and the smooth hum of the Cody Choir singing our Alma Mater.

It is the Comet Cody

Contrary to public opinion, the Comet staff does work on occasion to produce the school yearbook.

Although life at Cody is centered in the classrooms, the many extracurricular activities greatly affect the lives of the students.

Each year crowds turn out to cheer the Cody teams. Football and basketball teams spend many hours in preparation for their games. The band, majorettes, and cheerleaders work hard to provide entertainment and boost our school spirit.

The many clubs at Cody offer students the chance to meet other people with similar ambitions. They also give students a chance to develop new interests as well as to learn more about old ones.

BANDARAMA 1964

Debbie Dybas, Stage Band vocalist, relaxes before singing "Days of Wine and Roses".

Accompanied by the Cody Stage Band, Reginald Greenslade, Kenneth Adams, Edward Brophy, and John Evans form a cornet quartet.

The Cody Stage Band, led by Mr. Larry Teal, gives an exciting climax to σ Bandarama selection.

Elizabeth Dowler, solo flutist in the Concert Band, has just completed "Night Soliloquy". Her look of smiling relief reflects the audience's approval of a well-done performance.

The Roaches, faintly resembling Mr. Stephen Keller, Mr. Walter Bothwell, Mr. Gerald Bennet, and Mr. Louis Graziano, give a dignified ending to the teachers' skit.

Don West is given some pointers on how to hold flowers in a lady-like manner from Miss Milda Mielke, the advisor.

The Spring Play

'Charley's Aunt'

Tom Krupka and Richard Salomonson receive wardrobe help from Ron Medico, the play's butler.

Charley's aunt, isn't she adorable? Steve Writt and Bob Summers are wondering.

A tree and the sound of voices raised in chorus are sure signs of Christmas.

"The Meaning of Christmas"

The Terpsichoreans move smoothly into the spirit of Christmas.

The Cody Combo gives the Yuletide season a quick beat as they play "A Swinger."

"THE HALLS OF CODY"
"Oh, we love THE HALLS OF CODY that surround us here today, And we will not forget tho' we be far, far away.
To the hallowed HALLS OF CODY every voice will bid farewell, And shimmer off in twilight like an old vesper bell.
One day a hush will fall, The foot steps of us all will echo down the hall and disappear . . .

The June and January officers are eager to exchange ideas concerning their offices.

But as we sadly start
our journey from apart,
A part of every heart
will linger here
in the sacred HALLS OF CODY,
Where we've lived
and learned to know,
That thro' the years
we'll see you
in the sweet after glow.
Oh, we glow,
Oh, we glow."

Passing of a President

At roughly 2:30 P.M. on the afternoon of Friday, November 22, 1963, nearly half of the Cody student body were in their eighth hour classes. At this moment, in the city of Dallas, Texas, three shots fatally wounded President John F. Kenndy.

I heard the news first while driving into a supermarket parking lot. I thought that the station I was listening to was playing a gag record of some sort. The whole country and I soon found out that this was no joke.

At first, the news of the assassination did not affect me. I didn't break down and cry; I really didn't feel too badly about it - at first.

Then as that fateful weekend wore on, I realized that our country had lost one of the greatest leaders it had ever had. The president bears the weight of this country, and I think John F. Kennedy bore this weight well.

This act, I am sure, has lowered the image of America in foreign lands. How could anything this tragic happen in America, the greatest country on earth? Nobody knows, but it did.

by Roe Green

November 22, 1963

On President Kennedy

Few words can adequately express the loss we Americans feel over the brutal assassination of our beloved President Kennedy. A trained and efficient leader, as well as a benevolent man well loved by his countrymen, will not be easily forgotten or merely recorded in some history book.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy was a vibrant, animated person advanced in learning well beyond his youthful years. He was known not only for his political achievements and his quich but steadfast decisions, but also for his home life and the devoted attention he displayed for his loved ones. Being a famed leader in addition to a model husband and father are two qualities that are hard to satisfy simultaneously, but John Kennedy was able to meet these demands adequately.

Under the direction of this renowned president, our nation continued to prosper and to reap the benefits of his guidance and concern. President Kennedy knew that all of his decisions would not please every American, but still he continued to take a firm stand on issues he thought would best serve the interests of our nation as a whole.

Now this outstanding example of a man is gone. The body of this great man will never breathe again, no matter how many Americans mourn in sorrow. But the spirit of John Fitzgerald Kennedy does not need to lie buried with the corporal remains, it can live on in each of our hearts and be reflected in our actions.

The Play Has Gone On

The sign read "The Man In The Bowler Hat,"
The students filed in, and the lights dimmed,
The director walked into the spotlight,
And the play went on.

But what had happened before the play? Why is one of the performers late on her entrance? Something tragic that not everyone knows about,

So the play went on.

In another part of the country a man lies quiet, His young body now lifeless.

Tears are shed, the people are still, But the play went on.

A solemn caravan returns to the airport, The throngs are gone from the streets, The news is flashed around the world.

And still the play goes on.

The motors are humming, the plane is impatient, A small voice and a husky one can be dimly heard, The line has preceded one step, and life returns,

The play has gone on.

by Cherrie Goldman

A Memory, A Thought

The sun has set on another day,
a brave young man has passed this way.
And deep into the night I'll say,
I can't believe it's true.

For just this morn' he breathed a breath, and now he lives not but in death A thought which strikes one to the depth, of all reality.

We wonder why he had to leave, we say we've all lost much indeed, But if we only would concede.

he was not ours to keep.
A gift he was for our country,
a gift to help to keep us free,
An aid to the cause of liberty,
to guide this world to peace.

The sun will rise on another day, our brave young man is far away, And now we gather here to pray, for a gift that came our way.
